COLEMAN IS ON STRIKE

The Miners Have Been Idle Since Saturday-Refuse to Pay Company For Water and Light

HELD MEETING ON SUNDAY

Crowds of Idle Miners Throng the Streets-Company Hold Union Fees Pending a Settlement

At a meeting of local 2633 of the United Mine Workers of America, held in the miners' hall, at Coleman, on Sunday afternoon, the miners in the employ of the International Coal & Coke Co., Ltd., decided to go out on strike because the company refused to hand over to the union the monthly fees of the union men deducted from their pay on Saturday last. The amount in question is about $1,524. The company claims that the union owes them about $900 for light and water which they have used in connection with the miners' hospital and for which the company has not received any payment during the past five years. Against this the union claim that they were to receive all water and light for their hospital free of charge.

The streets of Coleman are now crowded by idle miners and business has already received a set-back. It is probable that the miners of Coleman will remain idle until a new agreement has been signed by the operators and representatives of the union to replace the one which expires on Friday of next week.

Board of Trade Special Meeting

The special meeting of the Blairmore Board of Trade held on Monday night last was well attended.

The business of the meeting—consideration of constitution and bye-laws—was taken up. The committee presented their report with amendments, etc. for approval.

President Coulthard stated that the Fernie bye-laws required for ten to constitute a quorum, and he considered that seven would be quite sufficient. The secretary read the bye-laws, with proposed amendments, which were accepted by the Board.

Messrs. W. A. Beebe and E. E. Hinds were appointed auditors for the ensuing year, and were asked to bring forward report on the preceding year's work at the next general meeting.

The secretary was given permission to provide stationery for the Board.

The matter of raising the salary of the secretary was brought up, and a committee asked to consider same and report.

Applications for membership were received from J. B. Smith, R. Green and G. A. Passmore, all of whom were elected members.

Next week we will give an account of the official opening of the new sanatorium hotel.

Man Burned To Death

A mysterious fire occurred at Hillcrest on Friday evening last, whereby a man named Samuel Woodman, aged 27 years, a well-known carpenter, lost his life and a house with all its valuable contents were reduced to ashes.

Flames were seen issuing from the residence on the McLean ranch late that evening but although a large number gathered around the conflagration soon after the fire was discovered, it was impossible to save the burning building or any of its contents. Woodman was left in charge of the house while the McLeans were visiting in the East, and as soon as the fire was discovered an anxious crowd congregated around the enveloped building wondering if Woodman had become a victim. Several efforts were made to penetrate that mass of flames but without success and it was not until the fire had about burned itself out that Woodman's charred remains were found in the cellar.

An inquest was held at Frank on Monday which was adjourned until Tuesday when the following verdict was rendered:

"That the deceased, Samuel Woodman, came to his death while in a state of intoxication, by burning in a fire which occurred on March 17th, 1911, in a log residence at McLean's, the cause of the fire being unknown."

The Alberta Musical Festival

The fourth Alberta Musical Competition Festival will be held in Edmonton during the third week of May and promises to be an even greater success than in previous years. It was hoped that this year's festival would have been held in Calgary, so as to give those in the southern parts of the province a better chance of competing, but the musical people of Calgary found themselves unable to take charge of the festival and it will therefore be once more held in the capital city.

The committee would specially call the attention of the smaller towns to a new competition, added this year, for quartettes of mixed voices, the members of which need not belong to the same or to any church choir, and also to the new competitions for vocal duets (soprano & contralto or tenor and bass).

Soloists will find that the oratorio numbers selected for this year's competition are not of such great difficulty as last year, while the competition for boy and girl soloists, under fifteen years of age, should attract a number of the younger musicians of the province.

His Honor Lieutenant Governor Bulyea has this year donated a silver cup which will be awarded to the most artistic performance in any class given during the festival.

A copy of the syllabus can be obtained from the secretary of the Festival, (Mr. F. Landson, P. O. Box 387, Edmonton), or from one of the local secretaries who are as follows: Mr. Percy Newcome, Calgary; Mr. Claude Hughes, Wetaskiwin; Mr. T. MacGee, Crossfield; Mr. S. S. Newton, Raymond and Cardston; Mr. L. M. Gault, Red Deer; Mr. A. Tiller, Lethbridge; Mr. C. E. K. Cox, Stathcona.

The secretary has also a full supply of all the competition music so that there need be no delay in competitors obtaining same.

As in previous years the railway companies will give a special rate of a single fare for the return journey.

MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD

Blairmore School is Far Overtaxed Board Decides to have present Building Enlarged.

ADDITION WILL COST $5,000

Teaching Staff will be Increased.

Reports of the Past Year are Very Encouraging.

The school board met in Mr. Beebe's office on Thursday evening last. There were present W. A. Beebe, chairman; L. Dutil, secretary-treasurer; T. Frayer and H. E. Lyon.

A very encouraging report from Inspector Morgan was read. He advised the board to make an addition to their school and have an increase made to the teaching staff.

Moved by T. Frayer, seconded by H. E. Lyon that the sum of $25 be expended for school library and that the secretary-treasurer write the department of education re the selection of books, etc.—Carried.

The secretary-treasurer was also instructed to get a copy of the new truancy act. Moved by H. E. Lyon, seconded by T. Frayer that the secretary-treasurer write the department of education for permission to borrow $5,000 by sale of debentures for the purpose of building and furnishing an addition of two rooms to the present building.—Carried.

H. E. Lyon moved and T. Frayer seconded that D. A. Sinclair be elected as the assessor for the school district.—Carried.

Man Shoots Himself

Thomas Harvey, known by many throughout The Pass because of his peculiar manner, ended his earthly life on Friday last.

On Friday Tom was found dead in his shack at the east end of Burnis and by his side was found a shot gun which had a string attached to the trigger and which too plainly told the tale that the last big game that he ever shot was Tom, himself. His head was completely blown off and Tom will never more roam the prairies and hills here in search of gophers and squirrels but has gone to another camping ground from which no sportsman ever returns.

An inquest was held by Coroner Pinkney on Saturday. The jury returned a verdict that Thomas Harvey came to his death by suicide while in a melancholy state of mind.

"The Belle of Barnstapole"

A large crowd greeted "The Belle of Barnstapole" at the Coleman opera house on Monday evening. This musical opera was put on by the Pincher Creek Operatic Society and was interesting right from the start to the finish. There was not one dull moment. All the performers did their parts admirably well and had the large audience captivated from the time the curtain rose until the singing of the national anthem. Pincher Creek produces not only good hockey players but also turns out about the best sample of actresses and actors that have graced the Coleman opera house stage for many a long day. All those excellent performers are citizens of Pincher Creek, and we heartily congratulate them on the excellent and able manner in which they performed their several parts in that enjoyable musical opera, "The Belle of Barnstapole" which so charmed a crowded house at Coleman on Monday night last. We await with considerable pleasure, their return to The Pass. Our crowded space prevents us from making further comment.

Not Even Semi-Human

We have one or two individuals in this town who, by their frantics and indecorous talk have proven themselves to be not even semi-human. They are continually slandering and finding fault with those who never cease in helping our town and in making it a desirable place to live in.

We are out for equal rights to all and special privileges to none, and those who know us best know that that has been our motto ever since we have been in your midst.

We will not remain quiet when the names of many of our most worthy citizens are being defamed by an idle gossip who has by force of law been compelled to leave other towns and is now seeking shelter in our community.

This town is far too good to be a hiding place for one whose greatest delight seems to be in wallowing in the mire of venom and slander and the sooner he leaves the sooner shall a peace loving community be able to earnestly sing, "Praise God from Whom all blessings flow."

Anybody can soil the reputation of any individual, however pure and chaste, by uttering a suspicion that his enemies will believe and his friends never hear of. A puff of the idle wind can take a million of the seeds of the thistle and do the work of mischief which the husbandman must labor long to undo, the floating particles being too fine to be seen and too light to be stopped. Such are the seeds of slander, so easily sown, so difficult to be gathered up, and yet so pernicious in their fruits. The slanderer knows that many a mind will catch up the plague and become poisoned by his insinuation, without seeking the antidote. No reputation can refute a sneer nor can human skill prevent mischief.

Editorial Notes

"A cure for insanity" is being advertised in Coleman. They say the parties doing the advertising are getting their treatment gratis.

J. H. Hawthornthwaite, M. P. P. for Nanaimo, B. C., is reported to have just purchased a residence in Victoria for the sum of $30,000. Still he pretends to be a Socialist and a foe of the capitalists.

The Fernie Free Press says that their city is the Pittsburg of B. C. while the Michel Board of Trade declares that their town is "Pittsburg." The question now arises, "Who is entitled to this coveted name, Pittsburg No. 1 or Pittsburg No. 2?"

"Canada to-day is not in favor of reciprocity," declared Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the house of commons during the session of 1898. "There was a time when Canadians, beginning with myself, would have given many things to obtain the American market, but thank heaven these days are past and over."

"There was a time when we were wanting reciprocity with the United States, but our efforts were put aside and negatived. We have said good-bye to that trade, and we now put all our hopes upon the British trade."

"Red" Hawthornthwaite, the idol of the Socialists in British Columbia, has just been revealed as one of the displaced claim and is evidently a capitalist of no mean degree. Of course our friend Charlie, wouldn't do anything like that.

Home Course in Health Culture

XV.—Germs in the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1918, by American Press Association.

HERE are "good germs" and "bad germs," just as there are "good trusts" and "bad trusts."

"Germ busting" in some respects resembles "trust busting." Publicity and the light of day are supposed to be correctives for bad trusts. Sunshine and fresh air will unquestionably restrain the activities of bad germs.

An example of a good germ is the lactic acid bacillus found in sour milk. Tablets containing these germs are now used in medicine for the treatment of intestinal trouble, it having been found that they destroy certain harmful bacteria that flourish in the intestines. In fact, the "culture of life" in the form of artificially soured milk may now be purchased at drug stores, but whether it is a real stimulant and actually prolongs life by killing off the bacteria that produce old age has not been fully passed upon by science. However, these lactic acid bacilli are quite useful and are employed in the treatment of infective processes in the nose and mouth.

Diseases Due to Germs.

It is not so long ago—only about fifty years—that learned men were willing to debate about "spontaneous generation." It was contended that microscopic organisms were found in certain fermenting and decomposing fluids were "spontaneous."

How to Avoid Malaria.

How the anopheles mosquito and you will avoid malaria. It is positively nothing to do with malaria. Particularly avoid being bitten by mosquitoes in the early evening. Screen your house and also screen your bed with netting if you live in a malarial locality. Best of all, do not let mosquitoes breed around your house. A small pail of standing water will produce thousands. It is a seed countess swarm of mosquitoes on a golf course where the sole breeding places were a few water boxes for washing golf balls.

Allow no standing water around your place. Screen your water barrel or cistern. Pour coal oil along the margin of swamps or slow running streams. Drain all stagnant water. Deprive the mosquito of a place to breed and the "fever and ague" will not get you.

Pneumonia, Grip, Etc.

Every one fears scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough and diphtheria, for they are well known to be communicable or contagious. It is not so generally known that pneumonia is an infectious general disease with a local manifestation in the lungs. The pneumonia germ, like the scarlet fever and diphtheria germs, is a very tiny, but it is rather short lived and easily killed by sunlight and fresh air. In the modern treatment of pneumonia these agencies are utilized, and the patient is treated as far as possible in the open air. Every precaution should be taken to destroy the sputum of pneumonia patients. Strong tea is a good disinfectant for this purpose, but burning is better. People in attendance on pneumonia patients should protect themselves from infection.

Malaria Disinfectants.

Heat—boiling is the most effective way of sterilizing clothing, handkerchiefs or other articles that can be treated in this way. Useless infected articles should be burned.

Soups.—One ounce of common soda to twelve quarts of hot soap suds and water is an excellent cleanser for floor, refrigerators, etc.

Chloride of Lime.—Powdered chloride of lime is a strong disinfectant and deodorant. It should have a pungent, penetrating odor and an extremely irritating effect on the eyes and air passages, otherwise it is inert and useless.

Milk of Lime.—One quart of freshly slacked lime to four or five quarts of water; useful for the same purpose as chloride of lime in disinfecting stables, drains, sewage vaults, sinks, all places where putrefaction, foul odors or infection may exist.

Carbolic Acid Solution.—Six ounces to one gallon of water. This is dangerous to have around the house and must be used with care. Useful for washing floor, cleaning utensils and pouring down drains when infection is feared.

Formalin.—One part of formalin to ten of water is quite as useful and less dangerous than the former. For disinfecting rooms use the following for each thousand cubic feet of space: Place four ounces of potassium permanganate crystals in a metal pail and add eight ounces of formalin (40 per cent solution). Place this in the middle of the room, which should be left tightly closed for from five to twenty-four hours. Avoid inhaling the gas which is quickly formed after mixing the above ingredients. This gas does not penetrate bedding or upholstery and does not injure metals or fabrics. It will not destroy fleas. Two ounces of gum camphor added to the above mixture will kill flies and mosquitoes.

To completely disinfect clothing, bedding and upholstery the formalin solution must be freely sprayed directly on these articles.

The housewife must be just as the old oaken bucket in the barnyard has gone for us hope, and the pious, unworldly, bedridden and ever long cherished or endured conditions that invite poverty, crime, disease and death. But how shall we get rid of this pest, who dwells here in our midst? First, destroy his breeding ground. Burn up all paper or rubbish around your farm or

THEY'RE NOT SO BAD.

Frank Bullen Says Sharks Are Really Good Fellows.

Even the shark, dreaded as he is, has some good points about him, especially when you take into account his viewpoint. For years in his place and a shark—or even a shark—has been found to be not such a bad fellow after all. Mr. Frank Bullen recently gave an address before a gathering of children for the purpose of the Royal Geographical Society in London, and he related many interesting facts about sharks and other strange creatures of the deep.

"I can assure you," he observed in a manner which breathed sincerity, "that the shark is really a most estimable creature. He eats man, no doubt, but not because he likes man as a diet—simply because man happens to be there. I have seen a shark swallow a bag of cinders just thrown overboard, and no one would suggest that a shark was fond of cinders. He eats because he cannot help eating. He is a shark with a fish's mind. He is the scavenger of the sea."

The lecturer told a story of an incident he had witnessed. A shark was hooked, and having been dragged on board was mutilated in the cruel way that developed until it passed into the regard as the enemy of mankind. Then the brute was thrown overboard still alive. The ball was thrown at him, and the expiring shark immediately turned on his back and swallowed it, though, as Mr. Bullen admitted, he had nowhere to put it. And would the shark attract the life-long affection and interest of other fish unless it had estimable qualities? The little pilot fish was always in constant attendance. It was supposed for the purpose of guiding the shark to food, and never left it. Even if a shark was killed, the pilot fish would conscientiously follow the ship as long as it could. Another characteristic of the shark was the love of its young, which it tended with devoted care and temporarily hid in its mouth in moments of danger.

It is just as well, as Mr. Bullen pointed out, that there is always a constant warfare and hunting going on among the denizens of the ocean. There were no vegetarians. All existed to eat and be eaten—nothing was lost, and old age penalties were not required. The fecundity of the shark was so vast that it had been estimated that he could not say with what exactitude—that if all the codfish that were born survived for two years it would not be possible to count the number that crossed the Atlantic, which would just be a solid mass of codfish.

When he saw the fish that swarmed on the Great Bank of Newfoundland his head turned dizzy with the possibility of the amount of food they required.

Describing the jelly fish as being the most curious of creatures, he said it multiplied by dividing itself, and lived on fish far higher in the scale of life than itself. He exposed to the fish, it would swim away in a few minutes.

People might write about the antediluvian monsters, but they were "not in it" compared with the sperm whale, which weighed as much as 200 tons. There was another whale, which could easily swallow his own calf, and which was said to have been taken to pay the whole cost of the voyage. Yet this monster was helpless, and only had to be chased long enough for it to die like an old man who had run to catch a train after a heavy meal.

Some whales, although huge in size, have very small "swallows," and lived on tiny creatures. One of these was mouths—four million of these went to make not a mouthful, but one satisfying meal.

Absentminded Lord Derby.

Lord Derby could be very absent-minded, and once on a time he was with Lord Clarendon, his opponent, and told him all the secrets of the Cabinet. Lord Clarendon was amazed, but thought it too large an order when he was asked for his advice. It was not for him to give his political views. At this juncture Lord Derby woke up, saying, "Really, I have forgotten all the secrets of the Cabinet. I have been thinking of a colleague." He had, continued, hardly recognizing the fact, a controversy he had been having with other ministers at the Foreign Office. Of course Lord Clarendon honorably preserved the Cabinet secret, but he told his story against Lord Derby and made a laugh.

A White Blackbird.

A white blackbird has been seen near Dalketh. It appeared on a garden path and then flew into the garden, and was pecking into the earth beneath a bush for food in the form of a daily worm. Afterwards it made its flight into a field close to the garden, and, as the spectator got a good view of it, he noted the white markings of the bird. The bird's forehead and cheeks were white, and white was noticed on the back of the neck. The wings were conspicuous for whiteness.

Old Theatre Dug Up.

According to report a section of the amphitheatre of King Richard's old theatre table in Marmouthshire, England, has been partially excavated. Five feet below the surface, five excavations around the walls and the searchers found the main entrance. The theatre was built on the bed of the arena, and a corner-stone from inscriptions on the stone they traced the date of the theatre back to 110 A.D., or 1500 years.

Fixing the Jury.

When a charge of meat stealing was about to be heard at the Swansea Assizes, the man charged with the offence was found in the dock. He was discovered among the grand jury, helping to decide whether there was a bill against him. He was found not guilty and discharged.

LINGERIE POINTERS.

Underwear That Is Suitable For the Mode.

COMBINATION SKIRT AND CORSET COVER.

To accommodate the new tight fitting styles—straight slips—in princess and empire styles are being worn. In combination the three-piece design is also much used. This new underwear is made up in clinging materials, the finer ones being shown in chiffon cloth, while the others are in cotton.

They are trimmed with both lace and hand embroidery. The illustration shows a charming skirt and corset cover combination especially adapted for wear with low evening gowns. The shoulders of the corset cover are not sewed together, but are made separate and connected with ribbon ties. The slip is hand embroidered, and the cut is very clinging.

Comfort in a Kimono.

Of course you see at a glance the new features of this kimono, the most striking of which is the fastening, a double breasted overlap held with two big buttons covered with the facing material. The sleeves, too, are very comfortable and new.

Wants Girls Named For States.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke urges patriotic Americans to name their children after the states and the nation. He commends in this respect the South Americans, who use Colombia, America and many streets and towns derivatives of famous names connected with the history of the western world. The president of Ecuador has three daughters, and they are called America, Quiza, the feminine of the capital city of Ecuador, and Castilla, after the ancient race from which the Latins are proud to derive their origin. Years ago Alabama, Mississippi, Missouri, Indiana and other euphonious names were popular for girls. Now such a name seldom is heard—a decline of patriotism and state pride, thinks Dr. Van Dyke.

Circumstantial Evidence.

The man of the house was looking for his umbrella when on finding it asked the members of the family if they had used it.

"I think sister's beau took it last night," said Harry.

"Why do you think so, my son?" asked his father.

"Cause when I was in the hall last night I heard him say, 'What a nice little I just stole one.'—Lippincott's.

THE SCARLET "S."

Marked Murders Have Left Behind Them.

Strange marks on the bodies of murdered persons have played an important part in bringing home the guilt of the perpetrators on very many occasions.

Barry, indeed, have they been so suggestive of melodramatic mystery as the letters cut on the cheeks of the man whom murder murdered on Clapham Common, in London, recently, but there are many instances of strong dramatic interest.

An example may be cited in connection with the murder of Jack Denny, the belle of the village of Deddington, near Brentwood.

The poor girl was found lying dead in a field with a cord twisted in several coils round her neck.

Suspicion fell upon her sweetheart, Thomas Drory, but there was no evidence against him beyond the fact that it was known that he was tired of her. On one of the girl's wrists were noticed two rows of marks, which, on further examination, were detected by the doctor to have been caused by teeth. The marks were very distinct and very evenly arranged.

The doctor suggested that the marks should be compared with Drory's teeth.

This was done, and it was found that the two corresponded exactly. It did not seem much to hang a man upon, but it sufficed for the purpose. The discovery Drory was terrified into confession, while pleading to carry his victim, he slipped the cord about her neck—and was forming a noose when she started to her feet, put her hand inside the loop, and it was there that he bit her wrist to make her gripe.

Eugene Chantrelle, who murdered his wife in Edinburgh to obtain insurance money, by the guillotine established through a brown mark found on the face of the lady and a brown stain on the floor.

The crime was one of exceptional craftiness. Chantrelle broke a gas-pipe, and by the gas escaping into the room should be supposed to be the cause of death.

It did not, however, that Dr. Littlejohn, the medical officer of Edinburgh, was an authority on the effects of coal-gas, and he decided that the symptoms shown were not those of suffocation, but of narcotic poisoning. They were caused by extract of opium, and on this discovery Chantrelle was arrested, tried, and found guilty.

The detestable crime Bishop and Williams—miscreants of the Burke and Hare type—was brought to light by the discovery of a blackish mark on the neck of a boy whose body the precious pair sold for dissecting purposes to the King's College Hospital. Mr. Partridge, the anatomical demonstrator, was curious to know the meaning of the mark, and found that although the spinal marrow was injured, there had not been sufficient damage to cause death. It was afterwards established that the boy had been enticed to a den in Bethnal Green, drugged, and then drowned in a well.

The Collecting Mania.

"Collectors of old prints, curios, etc., are often the most incorrigible of thieves," said a British Museum attendant. For instance, when the Garrick bequest to the British Museum, and the Malone bequest to the Bodleian Library—collections to be examined, it was found that both collections included property stolen from Dulwich College.

"Some years ago a number of very valuable books were stolen from the Bodleian Library," said, in illustration of this kind of collecting is always going on.

The favorite method with the thieves is to grow one finger nail very long and sharp. Then, when no one is looking, they cut out a little piece, or a plate, from some volume of great value.

And, as a rule, the stolen property is never discovered till the possessor dies, and so the thief is seldom brought to account.

Jack Cade's Monument.

At Heathfield, in England, is a farm on which stands the remains of an old stone house that is said once to have been the home of the notorious Jack Cade. Whether or not Cade ever lived there can never be accurately determined, but there is no doubt that the fact that he was killed in that neighborhood. On the main road, not far from the ruins of the house, stands a monument with this inscription: "Near this spot was slain the notorious rebel Jack Cade by Alexander Idene, Esq., sheriff of Kent, A.D. 1450. His body was carried to London, and his head fixed upon London bridge. This is the success of all rebels, and this fortune chanceth ever to traitors."

Red Flannel Currency.

A Scotch missionary to a group of small islands in the south Pacific a great many years ago found that red flannel circulating as money. This currency came to them in a curious manner. The body of a wrecked sailor had drifted ashore, and he had been found in the state of never before seen clothing of any kind; his red flannel shirt was an oblong, and he had no other clothing. By common consent they cut the garment into small pieces, which thenceforth became the currency of the island.

White Snake Soup.

There is a legend to the effect that long ago a man named Ramay of Banff, Scotland, having boiled down a white snake and accidentally swallowed a drop of the soup, against which he had been warned as poisonous, found himself endowed with the power to read the thoughts of the people he met. This unusual opportunity for diagnosis established his reputation and fortune as a physician.

Love and Business.

"I cannot have promised my hand to some one else, so I must return all your presents." "Good-bye! Whatever can I do with them now?" "My fiancé would buy them of you at the highest reduction."

Home Course in Tree Preservation

Editor of Tree Surgery.

IV.—Errors in Transplanting Trees.

[Copyright, 1918, by American Press Association.]

AMERICA was "the land of farmlands," but mountains, dale, hill and plain are now about demand of her trees, thereby destroying both wealth and glory. I was recently called to Philadelphia, Pa., to give a lecture on "The Salvation of Our Trees," and in going from Tyrone to Philadelphia I nearly made the heart sick. The beautiful hills on that part of the Allegheny mountains were entirely stripped of trees, and even the young growth, six inches in diameter, had been cut away to be used as "railroad props." The coal mines are nearly exhausted, and many people told me they would not live on the lands just for the taxes, for they would starve to death. And yet on those hills forty years ago were growing the most magnificent specimens of pines, hemlock and other conifers. It is with sadness that the people have seen the glitche forests fade away.

There is an instructive lesson of the tree in man, and as he looks upon the barren bleakness of treeless expanse he sighs for something to relieve the dreary, monotonous barrenness of the soil and commences to realize what it means to be without shade in the heat of summer and no trees to break the fury of the blasts in winter; hence he yearns to see that the barrenness of the trees by the highway, clumps or groves around the home, as well as the fruit trees in the orchard and garden. He goes to the woodlot and hunts for the young saplings and, having found them, proceeds to plant. One of the commonest mistakes he makes is to plant too close together, but the one mistake above all others is—well, "Whack!" off goes the top.

Very often the shade trees come from the nurseries with this same grave error committed on them.

By cutting off the top in order to live at all the growth is forced out from the twigs, and as the stub gradually decays a weak point is made right in the center, so that as soon as the branches are of any considerable size the strain of the wind soon rends it open at that point where the great strength is required. Every storm that comes along is weakening it still more, and the larger the branches the greater the leverage of the wind.

A storm had just passed and taken off one-third of the farthest tree in illustration No. 7. It had also split the other two limbs. In other words, the tree was ruined. In illustration No. 9 just one-half of the tree is wrenched off in a violent storm, and this tree also is ruined.

The mistake generally lies in selecting too large a tree, and being too large, the branch is so objectionable, and the winds would be apt to blow it over. Knowing this, the top is taken off, with the result that has been described.

The best size for common planting is a tree about as big as a broom handle. The proportions of the length of such a tree, say a maple or elm, would be almost twice feet and a good size would not be in place, and the tree would almost invariably grow, because it has its "feeling roots."

Many of our citizens are very much disatisfied with a well-known about Frank which appeared in a recent issue of the Calgary Daily Herald. It does not do justice to the town and is not much better than none at all.

The Methodist church here will give a concert in the Mica hall on Monday evening next. Some of the best talent in The Pass has been engaged for this event and an enjoyable evening will be surely spent by those who will attend.

The announcement that a miraculous spring has been discovered bubbling forth from under the altar of the Church of St. Clotilda has brought thousands from far and near on a visit to the church. An altar, on which a new statue of the Blessed Virgin had recently been placed, suddenly required the attention of a plumber. Investigation showed the spring of pure water bubbling from the earth. A similar occurrence was reported some time ago from a church of the same name in Leu, France. It is said that since the discovery of the spring two people who were suffering from different ailments, were cured instantly by the use of the water.

A New Department of the C. N. R.

The new Immigration Office of the Canadian Northern Railway has been opened at 62 Scott Block, Winnipeg, and is described by the city press as already a very busy spot. The Royal Line Steamers have their full accommodation taken for all sailings well into the summer. Mr. Hawley of the Winnipeg Office, is claiming a large proportion of farm hands and domestics for the West, and if the applications from these dealing help are as prompt and in as sufficient numbers as at present seems assured, the labor problem will not be such an acute one for this and following seasons. Application forms will be supplied by addressing W. A. Hawley, 62 Scott Block, Winnipeg.
